

NOW news

October 14, 2019

Dear NOW Community and friends,

This time I have big news:

Indrė Žliobaitė, whom many of you know already, has accepted the invitation of the Steering Group and agreed to replace me as General Coordinator of NOW. I'm extremely pleased and look forward to serving under her guidance in coming years.

As part of this transition, we are setting up a new NOW body, the Emeritus Board, to which I am transferring with immediate effect. The idea is to keep oldtimers like myself involved with NOW without having to carry out the regular chores that go with a position on the Advisory Board (and I have an inkling there may be more of those in the coming years). I therefore invite everybody who feels so inclined to join me on the Emeritus Board as soon as a replacement for the Advisory Board has been selected. You don't have to suggest your own replacement but you are encouraged to do so; in any case, new AB members will be approved by the Steering Group as always. I hope that this change will help to rejuvenate the AB without sacrificing the experience and continuity that the senior members of our community provide.

Please join me in welcoming Indrė and please let me know if you think the Emeritus Board might be for you!

All the best, as ever,

Mikael